

BYRON D. MILLER

Byron Miller is director of public relations for the South Carolina State Ports Authority, where he is responsible for external communications and serves as the Authority's spokesman. He joined the Ports Authority in 1993.

A South Carolina native, he is an active volunteer with various professional associations and community organizations including the Propeller Club Board of Governors, the South Carolina International Trade Conference Board, the Charleston Motor Carriers Association Board, the Charleston Traffic & Transportation Club Board, the National Transportation Week Committee, Trident Tech Business Advisory Committee and the S.C. Sea Grant Consortium Program Advisory Board. He was previously a campaign coordinator for Trident United Way and served on the group's Vision Council and Allocations Review Team. He also volunteered for the College of Charleston's Annual Fund.

Byron is a graduate of Leadership South Carolina and Leadership Charleston. He was named the Propeller Club's Member of the Year in 2005 and was selected for the Charleston Regional Business Journal's "Forty Under 40" in June 2000.

He earned bachelor's degrees in French and in business administration from The College of Charleston, with a concentration in global logistics and transportation.

Byron, his wife Kim and their daughter live on James Island.